How beautiful are the feet of those who bring Good News.

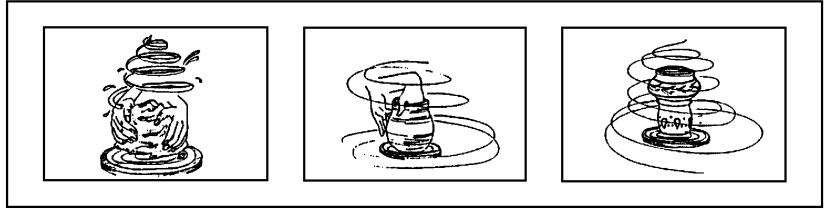

INTRODUCTION

In November of 1990 the Bishops of the Archdiocese/Dioceses of Louisville, Owensboro, Covington, and Lexington approved the recommendation for Statewide Guidelines by the Catholic Conference of Kentucky Education Committee for Religious Education.

The specific aim and purpose in developing The Statewide Guidelines for Religious Education is to give direction, unity, consistency and credibility for religious education across the state of Kentucky. These guidelines reflect lifelong catechesis in faithfulness to the Church's traditions and beliefs. They are designed on a life continuum basis, early childhood through adult. These guidelines, likewise, recognize and affirm the critical role of the catechist in the teaching mission of the Church, and all that this includes, in union with the leadership of the bishop of the diocese.

Returning to the Guidelines in 1998, the Diocesan Directors created a video/guide for parish directors to implement the Guidelines with parents and catechists. Age-specific skills are included to expand the original core concepts.

OUR CALL TO MISSION

The mission of Jesus, to bring about the realization of God's presence, is continued in the life of the Church through worship, word, community and service. Catechesis refers to all those activities that enable people to grow in their personal faith life within a community of faith (NCD, 32-33). Catechesis is a lifelong process that aims to make the faith of each individual real, meaningful and alive through instruction, community experience, prayer and social action. Religious education, integral to the catechetical process, proclaims and teaches God's Word and our faith tradition in order that faith might be enlivened and nurtured.

THE CATECHIST

The strength of a religious education program is in the person of the catechist. The catechist participates in the responsibility of the faith community to instruct others in the faith. Faith, however, is taught more by lived example than by word. Therefore, men and women of deep faith, committed to prayer and scripture, are called as catechists to share faith with others thus providing leadership in the area of religious education.

CATECHIST FOR THE ADULT LEARNER

Specifically, the catechist for the adult learner is...

- a witness to the mystery, message and person of Christ
- open to the experience of the adult learner
- a good listener and an effective communicator
- sensitive to interpersonal dynamics
- responsive to a variety of learning styles
- familiar with the stages of the family life cycle.

In relation to the adult learner, the catechist....

- ♦ fosters Christian community
- ♦ knows how to use and draw from basic resources, such as Scripture, Tradition, liturgy, the Magisterium, and the life of the Church in the ministry of the Word
- may function as a teacher/facilitator having a working knowledge and understanding of:
 - † adult learning theory and research
 - † adult learning needs
 - † adult learning techniques and strategies
 - † stages of adult psychological growth
 - † stages of faith and moral development
 - † characteristics of the participant learner.
- ◆ may function as a planner integrating the needs of self-directed learners, the society and world in which learners live, and the goals of the Church/institution in which the planning/learning occurs
- ♦ may function as an administrator using the basic skills of planning, managing, budgeting, and staff development.

SPECIAL LEARNING NEEDS

As catechists we recognize and affirm the uniqueness of each individual person, regardless of what pathway leads most directly to their minds, hearts or souls.

It is our unifying goal to make our religious education programs accessible to all persons and we look for creative ways to address the individual and special needs of all learners. We ask the question, "What gifts can the person with special needs offer our program?" as well as "What can we do for the person with special needs?".

John Paul II, in his statement on the millennium spoke of "not just an inner joy but a jubilation which is manifested outwardly, for the coming of God is also an outward, visible, audible and tangible event...It is thus appropriate that every sign of joy...should have its own outward expression." When we, as catechists, present these "signs of joy" in a variety of ways, truly the blind see, the deaf hear and the mentally disabled witness the concrete signs of God's presence in our midst.

In doing so we open our doors to those with particular learning needs, working in partnership with those with disabilities, their families and others who are knowledgeable about the most effective strategies. We can use these strategies to modify and expand our outreach for the inclusion of all persons within the loving circle of our parishes.

It is the responsibility of the faith community to identify and provide for the religious education of all peoples. Catechesis for those who are cognitively, sensorily or physically disabled will find guidance in a current comprehensive resource, Opening Doors to People with Disabilities: Volume I: A Pastoral Manual, and the background materials included in its 1,400 page second volume, published in loose-leaf format to allow for ease of copying and training purposes. This resource is available from the National Catholic Office For Persons With Disabilities, P.O. Box 29113, Washington, D.C. 20017, (202) 529-2933 (v/tty), (202)529-4678 (fax). Also available are guides for modifying those catechetical materials most commonly used within our parishes. (cf. Resource Page)

CULTURAL DIVERSITY

The Church has a long and rich history of valuing cultural diversity despite persons and times when sensitivity appeared lacking. Note this statement from the Fourth Lateran Council of 1215: "Since in many places within the same city or diocese people of various languages are mingled, possessing under one faith a variety of rites and customs, we firmly order that bishops of such cities and dioceses provide suitable men who according to the diversities of rituals and languages will perform for them the divine ministries and celebrate the sacraments, instructing them both by word and example" (cited by Pius XII in the apostolic constitution Exsul familia §653). In more recent times, popes since Leo XIII have responded to the needs of a world-wide Church in writings on peoples and, especially, on evangelization. Catholic social thought from John XXIII onward has insisted that true and full humanity is achieved only through culture.

Based on these teachings, the National Catechetical Directory, Sharing the Light of Faith, §194 urges catechists and catechetical leaders to be culturally sensitive:

- ♦ By being able to distinguish among sub-groups within larger groups. For example, the Spanish-speaking, while sharing a common language, include Mexican Americans, Puerto Ricans, Cubans, and others from South and Central America, each group with its distinct cultural characteristics, customs, needs, and potential.
- ♦ By preparing catechists from the particular racial, cultural, or ethnic group where possible or, at least, employing catechists who understand and empathize with the group.
- By using the language of the group being catechized where at all possible. This would include not just the vocabulary but the thought patterns, cultural idioms, customs, and symbols represented by such a language.
- ♦ By avoiding unrealistic demands on time, physical resources and finances of a particular ethnic group and by making adjustments which correspond to the educational level of those being catechized without shadow of condescension.
- ♦ By taking into account a group's special needs in relation to justice and peace, and preparing its members to assume their responsibility for achieving just goals.

Finally, even in culturally homogeneous areas and parishes, catechesis should be mutli-cultural. All persons should be educated to know and respect the gift that cultural, racial, and ethnic diversity offers.

CHARACTERISTICS AND NEEDS OF THE LEARNER

An adult learner

- ♦ is self-directed
- evaluates information based on lived experience
- accepts or rejects information on the basis of how that information relates to experience
- has a growing sense of being an adult member of the Church
- reacts most positively to information which is readily understandable and usable
- has acquired knowledge, experience and awareness.

An early adult learner

♦ has a spirit of optimism, idealism, enthusiasm and hopeful confidence.

A middle adult learner experiences "crises of limits:"

- ♦ choices become fewer
- failures and disappointments are harder to endure
- societal changes can be seen as threatening stability
- relationships and commitments may grow stale
- illness and signs of aging appear
- one begins to experience intimations of mortality
- one may be renegotiating relations with spouse, sibling or aging parent.

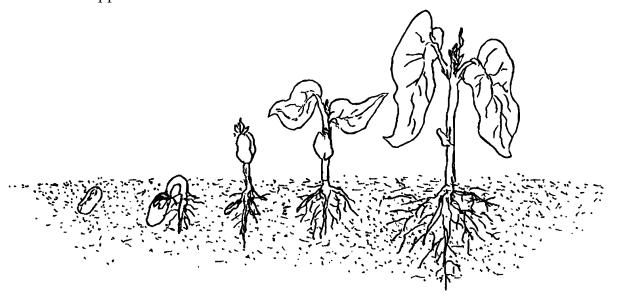

A later adult learner experiences the many meanings of the aging process:

- one gains wisdom
- one slows down and perhaps sees life for the first time
- "growing old" is celebrated and feared
- "growing old" is accepted and rejected
- ♦ loss of memory may occur
- one is challenged to accept the shifting of generational roles.

NEEDS OF THE ADULT LEARNER

- Christian education and formation that will promote:
 - ♦ human maturity
 - knowledge of God and a life of response
 - union with Christ.
- Support to be more effective in transforming family, community, and society with a Christian vision of reality.
- Encouragement in identifying, preparing and sharing in a particular ministry in the Church and/or society.
- ♦ Educational opportunities that:
 - ♦ are experiential
 - are oriented toward expressed needs
 - are oriented toward problem-solving
 - encourage participatory planning
 - allow for the opportunity to make choices concerning what will be learned and how this learning should be accomplished
 - are relevant and applicable to the learner's state in life.

IMPLICATIONS FOR TEACHING

Catechesis must:

- ♦ be Christocentric with a specific aim to deepen conversion and foster the maturity of faith, so that the person of faith comes "to follow Christ and learns more and more within the Church to think like Him, to judge like Him, to act in conformity with His commandments, and to hope as He invites us to" (CT, 20).
- be systematic and programmed to reach a precise goal
- ♦ deal with essentials
- ♦ be sufficiently complete in proclaiming the Christian mystery
- be open to all facets of the Christian life.

Contents:

- ♦ to be comprehensive yet diverse in presentation
- ♦ to include those universally relevant elements that are basic to the formation of an intelligent and active Catholic Christian
- to present the Church in all its dimensions...including what is to be believed and what is to be done
- ♦ to offer education for positive change
- ♦ to promote justice, mercy and peace for human, religious, and civil rights.

IMPLICATIONS FOR TEACHING (contd.)

Learning activities include the following:

- small group discussions
- ♦ retreat program
- ♦ seminars
- ♦ lectures
- ♦ workshops
- use of the media
- ♦ reading
- service experiences with critical reflection--e.g., soup kitchen, care for the earth, meals on wheels, visits to homebound
- ♦ mini courses
- ♦ book discussions
- ♦ social events with educational component
- others.

EDUCATION IN HUMAN SEXUALITY

"The ultimate object of education in human sexuality is the personal realization of total sexual identity and the affective maturation of the person." (HUMAN SEXUALITY: A Catholic Perspective for Education and Lifelong learning, p.75)

The document Human Sexuality encourages "ongoing formation in human sexuality not only for children and adolescents but also for all people, particularly during major transitions in life (e.g., puberty, moving away from home, engagement/marriage, parenthood, middle age, retirement, divorce or widowhood, ordination/religious vows, aging, serious illness)." (HS, p.5)

In these Guidelines, religious education and education in human sexuality are to be integrated. Instruction in human sexuality education is to be taught from a values-based perspective, rooted in Christian faith.

Education in human sexuality, in the Church's tradition, fosters family values and respect for the dignity of the human person, stresses personal responsibility, promotes wholesome relationships, and recognizes the demands of parenting.

The responsibility of the catechist is to enable the learner to internalize the beauty and sacredness of human sexuality. Through this conscience formation, the learner is able to apply these Christian values and morals to the challenge of everyday life.

... Male and Female God created them.

CORE CONCEPTS FOR LIFELONG FORMATION

In lifelong religious education learners make their faith in God real, meaningful, and alive through instruction, community experience, liturgical and personal prayer, and social action. The Nicene Creed, the National Catechetical Directory and the Catechism of the Catholic Church identify the following core concepts as the doctrinal basis for lifelong religious education. To foster mature faith in individuals and community, the Christian message must be presented in its entirety, while recognizing a certain hierarchy of truths. There are four central truths from which all other truths flow and by which they are illumined.

These four central truths are:

The Mystery of God, Creator of All Things

The Mystery of Christ, the Incarnate Word of God

The Mystery of the Holy Spirit, the Loving Presence of God

The Mystery of the Church, the People of God.

Related to these truths, there are core concepts that are of a formational and transformational nature. These move the learner to appropriate and live out the Christian message:

God Teaches Us How to Live Out Our Salvation

God Invites Us into Relationship through Personal Prayer and through Community Worship

God Calls Us to Love and Serve Our Neighbor

All core concepts are to be applied in age-appropriate ways at every age level of learning. The Core Concepts and their specific categories with age appropriate skills for the learner are outlined on the following pages. CATECHETICAL PROCESS

TASK

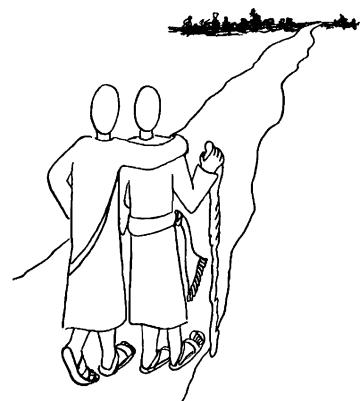

The aim of religious education is to make a person's faith become "living, conscious, and active." Because of the dignity of this pastoral activity, the way faith is nurtured to growth is vitally important. An authentic teaching-learning process is as important as accurate content. All catechists are strongly encouraged to utilize a process that focuses on the Mystery present here and now in all human life. This Mystery demands that, in every lesson, the divine dynamism found in each of our human experiences be considered. Therefore, to provide for maximum effectiveness of this task, the basic elements of the catechetical process, the catechetical method of shared praxis (T. Groome) and two basic approaches to planning, are outlined.

The basic elements of the catechetical process are:

- ♦ Personal Experience
- ♦ Scripture
- ◆ Tradition:

Community's Experience The Church's Story

- ◆ Faith Sharing
 in the context of personal, parish, and world pastoral concerns
- ◆ Critical Reflection
- ♦ Response in Service
- ♦ Prayer

companions on the journey...

THE CATECHETICAL METHOD OF SHARED PRAXIS:

The method of shared praxis as evident in the Emmaus story is outlines as follows:

SHARED PRAXIS

CATECHETICAL PROCESS

1. What are you doing?
A telling of one's personal story and experience.

TELL THE STORY

"Two of them were making their way to a village named Emmaus discussing as they went all that had happened...Jesus approached and began to walk along with them...He said to them, 'What are you discussing as you go your way?'...

2. Why do you do that?
A discovery of one's vision, assumptions, hopes.

ASK THE QUESTIONS

We were hoping that he was the one who would set Israel free...

3. What is the tradition?
A telling of the Christian Story and Vision.

HEAR THE TRADITION

Beginning then with Moses and all the prophets, he interpreted for them every passage of scripture which referred to him...

- 4. Dialogue between:
 - ♦ the Christian Story and my story
 - the Christian Vision and my vision seeking to unite the stories and visions.

DIALOGUE WITH THE TRADITION/NEW UNDERSTANDING

Stay with us. It is nearly evening...When he had seated himself with them to eat, he took bread, pronounced the blessing, then broke the bread and began to distribute it to them. With that, their eyes were opened and they recognized him...

- 5. What are you going to do?
 - making decisions about future practice
 - a call to conversion and to action

RESPONSE

Were not our hearts burning inside us as he talked to us on the road and explained the scriptures to us? They got up immediately and returned to Jerusalem... then they recounted what had happened on the road and how they had come to know him in the breaking of the bread."

Luke 24: 13-25

TWO BASIC APPROACHES TO PLANNING:

1. GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

Planning for the religious education experience may be done by setting goals (what one wants to do) and by determining objectives (how the goals will be accomplished). Most textbook curricula are based on this approach.

2. OUTCOMES BASED EDUCATION

Another method of planning for instruction is outcomes based education (OBE). The outcome or desired result is the measurable change in attitude, skill, or knowledge of the learner. This approach is being used statewide in Kentucky, prompted by the Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA). This approach can have a positive impact on religious education, especially when questions are asked, such as "What are they learning?" "Why are they doing those things?" etc. For outcomes based religious education answers these questions from the beginning by determining first how the learner will be changed by this educational moment and how the teacher/facilitator will know the specific measurable outcome will be demonstrated by the learner. Textbooks become a resource tool to aid the teaching activities to accomplish the outcome.

The figure below shows the difference between the two types of planning.

GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

Resources > Processes > Desired Results

OUTCOMES BASED

Desired Results→Processes→Resources

PRAYERS AND CELEBRATIONS FOR THE ADULT LEARNER

- ◆ Prayer is a conversation in which one must listen as well as speak. Seeking intimacy with God in silence is necessary and to be encouraged.
- Prayer is expressed in word and ritual and helps people to achieve and express the reality of internal self-surrender to God living in the depths of consciousness and flowing out into life.
- Prayer, for both individuals and communities, means a deepening awareness of the covenant relationship with God.
- ◆ Personal prayer permeates the daily life of the Christian and helps the individual enter into communal or public prayer.

Prayer forms of the adult learner include, but are not limited to:

- Sunday Eucharist is the "source and summit of our worship" (Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy #10)
- ♦ The Liturgy of the Hours communal prayers made up of psalms, canticles, readings from Scripture and selected Christian writers, hymns, responsories, and intercessory prayers. Opportunities for celebration of morning and/or evening prayer should be provided
- ◆ Paraliturgies or Scriptural celebrations designed for special occasions and oriented to particular themes. This type of prayer can deepen faith, strengthen community, foster Christian love, lead to ardent and fruitful participation in sacramental celebration, and intensify the community's commitment to social justice
- ♦ Biblical prayer
- ♦ Centering prayer contemplative prayer and journaling
- Meditation and contemplation
- Daily prayer, family prayer, and prayer at special times, e.g., before and after meals
- Devotions and other forms of prayer these should harmonize with the liturgy, be in some way derived from it, and lead people toward it.

Examples: Devotion to the Blessed Sacrament

Devotion to the Sacred Heart

The Way of the Cross

The Rosary of the Blessed Virgin Mary

Singing hymns and religious songs

The traditional prayers of the Church

SACRAMENTAL PREPARATION

In these Religious Education Guidelines, sacramental preparation is not being considered as a separate category. Readiness for the reception of the sacraments should be determined by an individual's faith development and life experience rather than by one's age. Furthermore, at whatever age sacraments are received, catechesis is to be age appropriate.

The adult learner who has been initiated into the Church through baptism, Eucharist, and confirmation is to be provided opportunity to reflect on the importance of the sacraments for the life of the Church so as to recall the significance of these sacraments and to reflect on any new significance that they have come to hold.

Adult learners who have not received one of the sacraments of initiation, for example confirmation, and adults who have approached the Church with the hope of joining should receive catechesis on the sacraments of initiation through the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults. "The rite of Christian initiation...is designed for adults who, after hearing the mystery of Christ proclaimed, consciously and freely seek the living God and enter the way of faith and conversion as the Holy Spirit opens their hearts. By God's help they will be strengthened spiritually during their preparation and at the proper time will receive the sacraments fruitfully." (Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults, Introduction §1)

The appropriate method to be used for this initiation process is liturgical catechesis. Initially, catechesis suitably prepares the catechumen for the experience of the Rites of Christian Initiation at each stage in the process. Secondly, liturgical catechesis provides the catechumen with good experiences of ritual, celebrated within the community as called for in the rites. Finally, the catechist invites the catechumen to reflect on one's experiences of the rites and mysteries of our faith. Catechists of adults are also cautioned to remember that "conversion" experiences for adults can affect all the relational systems around the adults, especially their families. Thus families should be included in the process as much as they are able and willing.

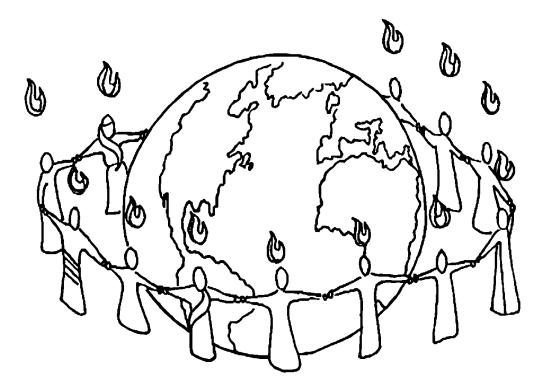

In the church's tradition, we are a sacramental people in a sacramental church. At every age the sacramentality of life, as well as the sacraments, is explored through appropriate symbols, rituals and catechesis.

CONTEXTS FOR RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Education in the faith, in Catholic traditions, and in values is lifelong and is to be done within the context of a faith community.

Options for religious education could include:

- ♦ Family Based Setting
- ◆ Family Centered Setting
- ♦ Intergenerational Setting
- ♦ Liturgical Catechesis
- ♦ Ungraded Groupings
- ♦ Classroom Setting
- ◆ Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults
- ♦ Youth Ministry Inclusive of Catechesis
- ♦ Faith Community Groups

Authentic religious education requires trained facilitators or leaders. Such options can meet the diverse needs found within the parish, regional or diocesan setting.

Care should be taken that the truths and traditions of the Catholic faith are handed on in a systematic, intentional manner. Implementing this recommendation may result in a variety of options operating simultaneously in a parish. To coordinate these efforts a catechetical leader needs to be designated.
