

Religious Order Priests and Others

Religious Orders

The Archdiocese also has received accusations of the sexual abuse of minors by members of religious orders related to their time working in the Archdiocese. We have limited records on these priests, and we do not have complete assignment information in all cases. Thus, we have listed the priests' names for each order, along with contact information for the order, including a link to any list of credibly accused clergy that the order may have generated. Some of these sites also have information about the order's child protection policies and/or general contact information. We will provide updates to this list if we receive additional information.

When the Archdiocese of Louisville receives a report concerning the sexual abuse of a minor by a member of a religious order, the accusation is referred to the order for response. We provide the victim survivor with assistance in contacting the police and the religious order and offer support through our Victim Assistance Coordinator.
